0 Introduction

telc English A2·B1 School is a standardised, dual-level examination intended for teenage learners. It measures general language competence across two levels of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR) using a task-based, communicative approach. The examination is particularly aimed at teenagers as it takes into account their interests and life experiences.

This telc English A2·B1 School Handbook has been developed to complement the telc English A2·B1 Handbook by giving more detailed information on the special aspects of the School examination such as the suitability of topics and vocabulary for the target age group.

The telc English A2·B1 format has been carefully developed to assess a precise combination of competencies at levels A2 and B1 within one single examination. The CEFR describes learners at A2 level as basic users (Waystage) and at B1 as independent users (Threshold Level). The dual-level examination measures and certifies which of the two possible competence levels being tested has been reached. Upon completion of the test, candidates receive a breakdown of their skills for each of the separate areas of reading/listening, writing and speaking, together with the overall level achieved: A2 or B1.

telc English A2·B1 School is ideal for classes or year groups in which the students have achieved varying levels of competence. The teacher may decide for pedagogical reasons that all the pupils should be given the opportunity to take an examination. And if part of the class is deemed good enough to achieve B1 and another part is still at A2 level, the whole group can take the same exam and each pupil will have his or her competence assessed and certified. Thus all participants have the chance to successfully complete the examination, which is especially encouraging for mixed-ability groups of learners. In addition, the teacher receives an up-to-date external assessment.

The importance of a telc Certificate as an extra qualification which reaches beyond what is documented on a school report in Germany, where the federal government recognizes 16 different Ministries of Education, each offering a wide variety of programmes and curricula. This diversity means that the marks gained by a school pupil of a certain age in a certain subject and recorded in a school report cannot readily be compared with the marks of another pupil in a different type of school and a different Federal State even if the subject, such as “English”, is nominally the same. A telc Certificate, on the other hand, is internationally-recognised proof that the person has attained a certain standard in the language (expressed in terms of a CEFR level) irrespective of what type of school they have attended and where they live, whether in Germany or another European country.

Another advantage of the telc English A2·B1 School examination is that when working toward their self-set goals, students are stimulated and motivated. A telc Certificate makes their achievement palpable, and those who take the examination know that this qualification will be regarded favourably by a future employer or will be of value if they decide to continue their education.

1 Target Audience

telc English A2·B1 School is intended for young people who:

- wish to demonstrate their current language skills
- are uncertain about their true language level or who have mixed language skills in the various areas.
- wish to communicate their own experiences in daily life and in their leisure and school-related activities.
- wish to demonstrate that they have the linguistic skills needed to attain an internationally recognised documentation of their achievements.
- wish to show their initiative for additional language learning and personal development.

telc English A2·B1 School measures language competence at levels A2 and B1 of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages. Level A demonstrates the skills needed for basic language usage and level B demonstrates the skills needed for independent language usage.

Candidates at level B1 can

- understand the main points in everyday situations, public announcements and radio announcements,
- extract important details from newspaper texts, statistics and various standard documents,
- write cohesive private or semi-formal correspondence such as letters or emails,
- lead a simple, direct conversation about topics which appeal to them, state their opinion and react appropriately to the opinion of their partner in conversation,
- report about things in daily life, make suggestions or arrangements.

Candidates at level A2 can

- understand the most important information in everyday conversations, short announcements on the radio and telephone messages,
- extract the most important information from short newspaper texts, everyday announcements and public signs,
- fill in standard forms such as applications or registrations,
- write notes related to their own surroundings,
- ask and answer informative questions in conversations about everyday topics,
- agree upon things in daily conversations.

The four subtests of the examination are explained in detail in the following sections.

For general examples of the task types, please refer to the A2·B1 Handbook. For school-related examples of the task types, please refer to the A2·B1 School Mock Examination.

Listening

Listening, Part 1

In the first part of this subtest, the candidates should demonstrate their ability to understand important details in voice mail messages spoken at a normal speed in a widely used standard variety of English.

Possible situations of language use reproduced by the task are:

- Listening to a message on an answering machine
- Understanding recorded messages on the telephone, e.g. messages from friends, parents, coaches, etc.

Structure	Instructions Example Audio texts Items
Objective	To assess the candidate's ability to understand specific information in voice mail messages
Intended operations	Listening for detail
Type of task	Multiple-choice items with three options
Number of items	Four (items 1–4)
Channel	Text: spoken Instructions and items: written
Type of text	Monologue: voice mail messages, both in personal and school-related contexts
Nature of information	Everyday situations requiring some kind of concrete action by the listener
Speakers	Number of speakers: one per voice mail message
Text length	55–65 words per voice mail message
Test items	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ The candidate will hear four voice mail messages. ▪ Each message is played once. ▪ For each message, there is one multiple-choice question with three options. The task is to choose the correct statement for each message. Only one option is correct.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	Vocabulary and grammar of the audio texts should be mostly at level A2. The language of the items should not exceed level A2.
Weighting	1 point per item (0 for incorrect response)

Listening, Part 2

In this part of the Listening subtest, the candidates should demonstrate their ability to understand a global message as well as specific details of information heard on the radio and in public announcements.

Material may include upcoming events, commercials, announcements in the classroom, at summer camp, at sports practice, in a shop, etc.

Structure	Instructions Audio texts Items
Objective	To assess the candidate's ability to understand general and specific information in short public announcements
Intended operations	Listening for gist (item 5) and listening for detail (items 6–9)
Type of task	Multiple-choice items with three options
Number of items	Five (items 5–9)
Channel	Text: spoken Instructions and items: written
Type of text	Monologue: announcements on the radio, in the classroom or over a public loudspeaker
Nature of information	Information on the radio, such as the weather forecast, upcoming events, commercials, etc., or announcements in the classroom, at summer camp, at sports practice, in a shop, etc.
Speakers	Number of speakers: one per announcement
Text length	55–65 words per announcement
Test items	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ The candidate will hear five public announcements. ▪ Each announcement is played once. ▪ For each announcement, there is one multiple-choice question with three options. The task is to choose the correct statement for each announcement. Only one option is correct.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	Vocabulary and grammar of the items and in the relevant parts of the texts should be at level A2 or A2+ in some cases.
Weighting	1 point per item (0 for incorrect response)

Listening, Part 3

This task aims to gauge the candidates' ability to follow conversations held at normal speed in a private or school context. In each dialogue presented here, students are tested on their ability to grasp the essence of the situation and their ability to understand details of the conversation.

The task reproduces situations of language use in which learners follow everyday conversations, both in personal and in school-related contexts, e.g. in the neighbourhood, at home, or in the classroom.

Structure	Instructions Example Audio texts Items
Objective	To assess the candidate's ability to understand the gist of conversations and necessary specific details
Intended operations	Listening for gist (items 10, 12, 14 and 16) and listening for detail (items 11, 13, 15, and 17)
Type of task	Four true/false items and four multiple-choice items with three options
Number of items	Eight (items 10–17)
Channel	Text: spoken Instructions and items: written
Type of text	Dialogues: conversations in personal and school-related contexts
Nature of information	The conversations can take place between two people meeting in person or talking to each other on the telephone: friends, school mates, parents, teachers, coaches, etc.
Speakers	Number of speakers: two per conversation
Text length	130–140 words per conversation
Test items	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ The candidate will hear four conversations. ▪ Each conversation is played once. ▪ For each conversation, there are two items: a true/false question and a multiple-choice question. The task is to decide whether the statement for each conversation is true or false according to what is said and also to choose the correct answer from three options. Only one option is correct.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	The vocabulary and grammar in the texts and items may range between levels A2 and B1.
Weighting	1 point per item (0 for incorrect response)

Listening, Part 4

This task is aimed at testing the candidates' ability to follow radio programmes of medium length dealing with everyday topics. They will hear statements spoken by people who have been asked their opinion on a particular topic which a presenter has briefly introduced at the beginning of the programme. The candidates have to decide which of the short statements provided sums up each of the speakers' opinions accurately.

Structure	Instructions Example Audio texts Items
Objective	To assess the candidate's ability to understand different opinions about a topic related to young people's interests
Intended operations	Listening for gist
Type of task	Matching items
Number of items	Three (items 18–20)
Channel	Text: spoken Instructions and items: written
Type of text	Monologues: radio programme or podcast with people stating their opinions on a particular topic.
Nature of information	Short statements reflecting the speakers' feelings, attitudes or opinions about a particular topic.
Speakers	Number of speakers: one per statement (four altogether)
Text length	350–400 words in total
Test items	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ The candidate will hear a radio programme or podcast with four people giving their opinion on a topic. ▪ The recording is played once. ▪ Each item is a short statement (one sentence). ▪ There are a total of six statements: three items, two distractors and one example. ▪ The task is to identify the items that correctly summarise the comments made by three speakers.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	The language in both the texts and the items should be at level B1
Weighting	1 point per item (0 for incorrect response)

Reading

Reading, Part 1

The task is concerned with reading to select required information. Thus it is a question of spotting relevant information in a medium-sized list without having to read and understand the whole list. Possible situations of language used in this task may involve:

- Students who would like to find out more about extracurricular activities at their school.
- Readers who would like to find specific information look quickly through English websites, catalogues or other printed matter.

Structure	Instructions (have to be adapted to the situation chosen) Example Text Items
Objective	To assess the candidate's ability to locate relevant information in a listed format
Intended operations	Selective reading and reading for detail
Type of task	Multiple-choice items with three options
Number of items	Five (items 21–25)
Channel	Written
Type of text	Authentic or semi-authentic signs and lists sorted into several sections
Nature of information	Lists and signs in schools, holiday camps, shopping malls, catalogues, websites, etc.
Text length	100–120 words in total
Test items	The task is to find the appropriate entry in the given list for each of five situations. For each situation, there is one multiple-choice item with three options. Only one option is correct.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	The language of the relevant parts should be mostly at level A2.
Weighting	1 point per item (0 for incorrect response)

Reading, Part 2

The aim of this task is to test the candidate's ability to grasp the main content of entries in Internet forums, and subsequently to read those texts which are relevant for required solutions and to understand them in detail.

The language use assessed by this task is relevant for young people who wish to use the Internet to research questions of interest to them, eliciting information and advice from Internet forum messages.

Structure	Instructions Texts Items
Objective	To assess the candidate's ability to understand relevant questions and answers from an Internet forum
Intended operations	Selective reading
Type of task	Matching items
Number of items	Five (items 26–30)
Channel	Written
Type of text	Messages posted on an Internet discussion forum.
Nature of information	Questions and answers about issues concerning school-related topics: classes, extracurricular activities, friends, etc.
Text length	Approximately 500 words in total
Test items	The task is to identify which item matches which text, and which item has no match.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	The vocabulary and grammar in the texts and items may range between levels A2 and B1
Weighting	1 point per item (0 for incorrect response)

Reading, Part 3

In this task, candidates have a chance to demonstrate their ability to deal with different text types. They are required first to understand the gist of varying short texts and subsequently the details pertaining to the solution of the corresponding items. The texts diverge from one another by narrowing down their target readership: The first text is informative and promotional and is aimed at a wider audience; the second is a newsletter for a select readership bound by a common interest; and the third a formal email directed to one individual or a class.

Structure	Instructions Texts Items
Objective	To assess the candidate's ability to understand the gist of formal or semi-formal texts and in addition specific details contained in them
Intended operations	Reading for gist and selective reading
Type of task	True/false items and multiple-choice items with three options
Number of items	Six (items 31–36)
Channel	Written
Type of text	The candidate has to read three texts: Text 1: Advertising material Text 2: Internet newsletter Text 3: Official email
Nature of information	Public entertainment, leisure or school-related activities, school procedures, etc.
Text length	100–120 words per text
Test items	There are two items for each text: one true/false item and one multiple-choice item. For each text, the task is to decide whether the statement is true or false and to choose the correct answer from three options. Only one option is correct.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	The vocabulary and grammar in the texts and items may range between levels A2 and B1.
Weighting	1 point per item (0 for incorrect response)

Reading, Part 4

In this task candidates are asked to demonstrate their ability to read a text of medium length with formal or technical features. The text deliberately contains some complex structures and language elements that are above the level tested in the examination, so that the candidate may tackle more difficult language. Possible contexts of language use which the task assesses are finding and understanding relevant information in the instructions for games, technical devices, etc.

Structure	Instructions Text Items
Objective	To assess the candidate's ability to understand relevant passages in informational brochures
Intended operations	Selective reading
Type of task	True/false items
Number of items	Three (items 37–39)
Channel	Written
Type of text	The candidate will read a relatively long text that includes complex language and structures.
Nature of information	Leaflets, instructional manuals, rules and regulations, etc.
Text length	Approximately 250 words
Test items	Each item is a short sentence (one statement). The task is to decide whether the statements are true or false according to what is said in the text.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	All items should be level B1. In parts of the text that are not relevant for the items, the vocabulary and language complexity may on occasion be above level B1.
Weighting	1 point per item (0 for incorrect response)

Reading, Part 5

This task bridges the gap between understanding a text and actively engaging with it. The candidates are required to select lexical, grammatical and structural elements in order to complete a reading passage. The text is a formal or semi-formal letter or email with the typical characteristics of the genre.

Structure	Instructions Example Text Items
Objective	To assess the candidate's understanding of text logic, grammatical structures and vocabulary in formal or semi-formal correspondence
Intended operations	Completing a letter or email (gap-filling)
Type of task	Multiple-choice items with three options
Number of items	Six (items 40–45)
Channel	Written
Type of text	Short letter or email in a school-related context
Nature of information	Letters/emails of complaint, reminders, requests, announcements, etc.
Text length	70–100 words
Test items	The task is to choose the correct word or phrase for each gap. The items should not just test grammar and vocabulary, but also the candidate's contextual understanding of the communicative situation as a whole.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	The language for the text and items should be at level B1.
Weighting	1 point per item (0 for incorrect response)

Writing

Writing

In the Writing subtest, candidates have a chance to demonstrate their written communication skills.

Candidates can choose one of two options. Each task consists of a brief description of a situation and four jumbled guiding points. The candidates are expected to write a semi-formal email, appropriate in content and form, based on the situation and the guiding points. They should address all four guiding points in the order that they think is best.

Candidates are encouraged to demonstrate the best of their writing abilities, and the way in which they do so will be reflected in the score they attain and the CEFR level they are deemed to have achieved. While some candidates may take a concise approach that fully addresses the guiding points, others may choose to elaborate on the required information. Both writing styles are equally acceptable, and for this reason, no word count is specified.

Structure	Instructions Situation Four guiding points
Objective	To assess the candidate's ability to communicate in writing
Intended operations	Writing an email that is appropriate in content and form
Type of task	Semi-formal email in school-related situations
Number of writing tasks	One (out of a choice of two)
Channel	Written
Input text	Each task consists of a brief description of the situation and four guiding points.
Nature of information	Both situations should relate to an aspect of school life. These might include emails to host families, language schools, coaches, teachers, etc.
Output text	Short semi-formal email in a personal or school-related context
Nature of information	Candidates are expected to write an email based on the situation described. In their email, they should cover all four guiding points. They may include additional information related to the topic.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	The input text should be at level A2.
Weighting	B1: 15–20 points A2: 7–14 points Below A2: 0–6 points

Speaking

Speaking, Part 1

In this part of the Oral Examination, candidates can demonstrate their ability to give personal information on topics such as family, home, favourite subjects, hobbies, etc.

In Part 1A, candidates are invited to talk about themselves. They will receive a task sheet with several guiding points which can be used as a source of inspiration.

In Part 1B, the examiner then asks each of the candidates follow-up questions based on the information he or she has just given.

Structure	Seven guiding points Examiner questions
Objective	To assess the candidate's ability to give information about him-/herself
Intended operations	Talking about oneself and answering follow-up questions
Type of task	Part 1A: monologue (the candidate briefly introduces him-/herself) Part 1B: dialogue (the candidate responds to examiner's questions)
Time	Approximately two minutes per candidate No preparation time
Channel	Written and spoken
Part 1A
Input: task sheet	Task sheet with guiding points: Name – Family – Where you live – Favourite subjects – Hobbies – Languages – Other ideas <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Both candidates receive identical task sheets. ▪ The guiding points listed on the task sheet are designed to help the candidate; not all of them need to be covered. ▪ The guiding points are the same in each version of the examination.
Task	The candidate should briefly talk about him-/herself using some of the guiding points on the task sheet as a point of departure.
Part 1B
Input: examiner questions	The examiner asks one or two follow-up questions based on the information the candidate has given.
Task	The candidate should respond to the question(s) in an appropriate manner.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	Guiding points are at level A2, examiner's questions should be at level A2 or B1, depending on the candidate's performance.
Weighting	B1: 70–100 points A2: 35–74 points Below A2: 0–34 points

Speaking, Part 2

In this part of the Oral Examination, candidates can demonstrate their ability to communicate on everyday topics. They are expected to describe a picture connected with the topic, express their opinions on it, give reasons for them and talk about their personal experience.

In Part 1A, the examiner will give each candidate a picture to talk about. The candidates should comment on the situation in the picture; people's roles, their actions, their clothes, etc. They may speculate about the picture and state their personal reaction to it. It is acceptable to use paraphrasing to describe unfamiliar words.

In Part 1B, the examiner then asks each of the candidates some follow-up questions encouraging them to talk about their opinions and their personal experience with the topic.

Structure	Image (visual stimulus) Examiner questions
Objective	To assess the candidate's ability to talk about his/her personal experiences with a particular topic
Intended operations	Talking about experiences based on the information seen in the picture and answering follow-up questions
Type of task	Part 1A: monologue (the candidate briefly describes what he/she sees in the picture) Part 1B: dialogue (the candidate responds to examiner's questions)
Time	Approximately three minutes per candidate No preparation time
Channel	Visual and spoken
Part 1A
Input: task sheet	Each candidate receives a different picture relating to the same topic.
Task	The candidate should briefly describe what he/she sees in the picture.
Part 1B
Input: examiner questions	The examiner invites the candidate to talk about his/her personal experiences with the topic and asks one or two follow-up questions.
Task	The candidate should respond to the question(s) in an appropriate manner.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	The examiner's task sheet includes three questions at level A2 and three at level B1 from which the examiner chooses the ones appropriate to the candidate's performance.
Weighting	B1: 70–100 points A2: 35–74 points Below A2: 0–34 points

Speaking, Part 3

In the last part of the Oral Examination, the candidates can demonstrate their ability to plan an activity together, such as a school party. They should exchange ideas until they achieve a consensus on the details; for example, where to meet, what to bring, how to travel, etc.

The candidates receive identical task sheets with a brief description of the situation and several guiding points. During this part of the examination, the examiner speaks as little as possible, thus allowing maximum communication between the candidates.

Structure	Situation Instructions Six guiding points
Objective	To assess the candidates' ability to plan an activity together
Intended operations	Making suggestions, reacting to your partner's suggestions, asking and answering questions, coming to an agreement
Type of task	Dialogue (the candidates talk to each other)
Time	Approximately six minutes for both candidates No preparation time
Channel	Written and spoken
Input: task sheet	Task sheet with a brief description of the situation and six guiding points <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Both candidates receive identical task sheets. ▪ The guiding points do not have to be addressed in the order they are listed on the task sheet.
Task	The candidates should plan an activity together (e.g. a school party) using the guiding points on the task sheet. They should share ideas, make suggestions and respond to each other's suggestions.
Topics	See Inventory T – Topics
Lexical range	See Inventory V – Vocabulary
Level	Guiding points should be at level A2.
Weighting	B1: 70–100 points A2: 35–74 points Below A2: 0–34 points

ENGLISH A2·B1 SCHOOL

telc English A2·B1 School is a standardised, dual-level examination intended for teenage learners. It measures general language competence across two levels of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR) using a task-based, communicative approach.

The telc English A2·B1 School Handbook gives detailed information about all areas unique to the School version of the examination, including inventories of topics and vocabulary. For an in-depth coverage of the A2·B1 examinations, please also refer to the telc English A2·B1 Handbook.
